The International Wildlife Film Festival is one of the Missoula community's most cherished and well-loved events during the year. It brings together a wonderful diversity of people and supporters who have a passion for conservation, wildlife, education, and the arts. As a local non-profit who also shares values in connecting people to nature and building stewardship with the great outdoors, the Montana Natural History Center is a proud sponsor and supporter of this incredible event.

—Jennifer Robinson, Director of Education at the Montana Natural History Center

Some IWFF event highlights.

Cultural Resurgence: Reviving Traditions, Restoring Lands

Free public event.
Featuring Whisper Camel Means, Clarena Brockie, Stephanie Gillin, and Peter Bugoni.

WildWalk parade & WildFest

More than 4,000 community members walked, slithered, and hopped down Higgins Ave.
Featuring a nudibranch sculpture by Shelby Baltridge,
WildWalk Artist in Residence.
25 WildFest vendors.
45 volunteers.

IWFF is a fantastic festival with an excellent line up of high quality films, engaged audiences, strong community feeling, and a generous and hardworking team. We enjoyed every minute and hope it will continue rocking the Roxy for many more years.
